About Debbie

Debbie has pursued a corporate career in human resources for 21 years working with global businesses across different sectors, in the UK and abroad. From 1997 - 2002 she lived in the United States of America where she developed her skills as a top-level coach, and many of her interests including Metaphysics and Neuro Linguistic Programming.

Whilst Debbie's career has enabled her to live abroad and travel the world, she has always been passionate about running her own business and bringing her business ideas to life. She is a founding partner of www.jigsawequine.co.uk where she coaches horse riders to improve in confidence, goal setting, handling stress, and concentration. On a personal note, riding horses has been her release from the stresses and strains of everyday life.

Today, Debbie runs her own coaching company called Acamar Coaching Limited and specialises in working with people who are serious about changing their life and getting what they want out of it. During the last six years she has developed a unique method for introducing clients to personal change and to life coaching, through an innovative approach called Handbag Therapy.
